

C1
cont

providing first travel information on a non-internet basis for flights between the specified departure location and the specified destination at the specified time, providing second travel information on an internet basis for travel between the specified departure location and the specified destination at the specified time, and providing for an adjacent visual display of the first travel information and the second travel information.

60
~~102.~~ (new) In a method as set forth in claim 101 wherein the first travel information and the second travel information are displayed in an adjacent visual relationship to simplify the selection of a preferred travel by the user and to provide for the selection among a full range of travel information.

41
~~103.~~ (new) In a method as set forth in claim 101 wherein

the first travel information and the second travel information are displayed on a single display screen to simplify the selection of a preferred travel by the user and to provide for the selection among a full range of travel information.

62
~~104.~~ (new) In a method of presenting offers of a travel service, the steps of:

sending a first request for details of the travel service to a global distribution system through a medium other than the internet, sending a second request through the internet to a server, receiving from the global distribution system, in response to the first request, first details of travel services, receiving through the internet, in response to the second request, second details of travel services, and displaying the first and second details of the travel services to obtain a selection of an individual one of the travel services by a user.

63
~~105.~~ (new) In a method as set forth in claim 103 wherein

the first and second travel services are displayed in an adjacent visual relationship to facilitate the selection of the one of the travel services by the user and to provide for the selection among a full range of travel services.

64
~~106.~~ (new) In a method as set forth in claim 103 wherein

the first request is sent through a wide area network and the first details of the travel services are received through the wide area network and wherein the second request is sent through the internet and the second details are received through the internet.

65
~~107.~~ (new) In a method as set forth in claim 104 wherein the first and second travel services are displayed on a single display screen to facilitate the selection of the one of the travel services by the user and to provide for the selection among a full range of travel services.

66
~~108.~~ (new) In a method as set forth in claim 105 wherein

the first request is sent through a wide area network and the first details of the travel services are received through the wide area network and wherein

the second request is sent through the internet and the second details are received through the internet.

67
~~109.~~ (new) In a method of presenting offers of a travel service, the steps of:

C1
cont
receiving from a first storage of information, by a medium other than the internet, first details of the travel service in response to a first request, receiving from a second storage of information, through the internet, second details of the travel service in response to a second request, and displaying the first and second details of the travel service in a relationship to provide for a simplified selection by a user of one of the first and second details of travel service and to provide for the selection among a full range of details of the travel service.

68
~~110.~~ (new) In a method as set forth in claim 109 wherein

the first storage of information is in a global distribution system and the first details of the travel service are received from the global distribution system through a wide area network.

69
~~111.~~ (new) In a method as set forth in claim 109 wherein

the first and second details of the travel service are displayed in an adjacent relationship to provide for a simplified selection by a user of one of the first and second details of travel service and to provide for the selection among a full range of details of the travel service.

70
~~112.~~ (new) In a method as set forth in claim 110 wherein

the first and second details of the travel service are displayed in an adjacent relationship to provide for a simplified selection by a user of one of the first and second details of travel service and to provide for the selection among a full range of details of the travel service.